Conveyancing

Megan Langford has worked in law firms for over 20 years. She started out as an office junior, and has progressed to personal assistant, senior legal secretary, account manager and is now currently a paralegal in conveyancing.

Based in the firm's Port Douglas Office, Megan handles most of the conveyancing matters which come from all around the region including Mossman and Daintree.

Megan enjoys working with clients in the region, and providing personalised service on a diverse range of conveyancing matters. She has a solid understanding of property transactions and has developed a good working relationship with clients, financiers, real estate agents, building and pest inspectors and others involved in the conveyancing process. She also assists absentee property owners, whether they are buyers or sellers, and they especially value Megan's network of local service providers.
